Robert Mueller "Cuvée X"

Despite lacking significant press to lean on (it's been over a decade since his wines were reviewed by Parker), Mueller remains among the most popular Pinot Noirs in our store. In fact, over the last five years, we've sold more Pinots from Mueller than any other producer. Reason being: (1) the wines rock, and (2) they're way underpriced. The two we normally carry are a generic Russian River bottling and their flagship wine, Emily's Cuvée.

But there's a third wine so secretive that even we were unaware of it until recently reading about it in the Wine Spectator. Given our close relationship with the winery, we called them directly for the low-down. As we discovered, "Cuvée X" comes entirely from a small plot within the famed Saralee's Vineyard, in an area termed the "tenderloin" of the Russian River Valley. Unfortunately, only 200 cases were produced so not much to go around. Though Mueller could easily sell these all himself directly through the winery, he has made the grand gesture of offering us a sizable allocation to ensure our customers can be taken care of, as well.

As with his other wines, pricing is sensational. It sells for a mere $35 at the winery, and through this exclusive e-mail offer, it discounts even further.

To order, click on the wine, reply to this email or call us at 800-678-9463. Quantity discount will be applied automatically upon checkout.
